SOCIETY OF WOMEN ENGINEERS

ABOUT THE CAMP

Every summer, the Society of Women Engineers (SWE) at Texas A&M University hosts a week-long summer camp for middle school girls, exploring the opportunities available in the fields of engineering and science.

Through hands-on demonstrations, tours of laboratory facilities, team-building activities, and design competitions, the girls will discover a new perception of engineering. Instead of the stereotypical idea of old men behind computers, they will find engineering to be an exciting and rewarding field that leads to careers in developing 3D movie technology, designing roller coasters, creating the next generation of cell phones, exploring outer space, and finding solutions to complex problems that shape the world we live in.

The camp is organized and led by active members in SWE. These ladies spend months planning for the camp and will serve as female role models who are passionate about pursuing a degree in engineering.

WHO CAN ATTEND?

Girls currently enrolled in the 7th and 8th grades who are interested in math, science, and/or engineering are encouraged to apply.

WHEN IS THE CAMP?

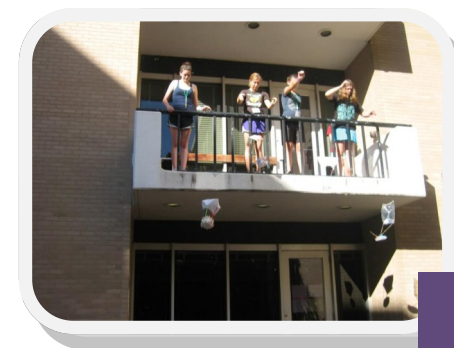

The SWE Summer Camp will take place from Sunday, July 22, 2012 to Friday, July 27, 2012.

HOW MUCH DOES THE CAMP COST?

A fee of $175 is required for participation in the camp. This fee will be collected from the participants AFTER they are notified of their acceptance. PLEASE DO NOT SEND MONEY WITH THE APPLICATION. Scholarships are available for those who qualify for financial aid.

WHAT ARE THE LOGISTICS?

Participants will be housed in Texas A&M University dorms for five nights. They will receive three meals per day plus snacks throughout the day. Supervision during the day and night will be provided by camp co-chairs and counselors, all of whom are current Texas A&M students.

HOW DO I APPLY?

The application can be found online at swe.tamu.edu/summercamp.

Interested girls must submit:

- Camper Application
- Responses to Essay Questions
- Recommendation Letter
- Scholarship Application, if applicable

DEADLINE

Submit the application components listed above to SWE by Friday, April 13, 2012. The SWE Summer Camp's mailing address can be found on the back of this brochure. Acceptance letters and additional information will be mailed out early May.
